British Sentiments and Actions

It is inevitable as a result of the mighty upheaval in the world caused by the Great War, and the stupendous and extremely complex problems which must be solved in carrying on the work of re-construction, that some misconceptions of policies and misunderstandings as to motives and actions will arise between nations; they even arise within individual nations. It is likewise inevitable, with Europe in the condition to which it has been brought by war and revolution, and with Great Britain as easily the most powerful and financially sound of the Old World nations, that a great burden of responsibility should be thrown upon the Government and people of the British Isles. If Britain shirked that responsibility, no man could tell what further disasters and atrocities would overtake the world, and Britain would be rightly blamed for neglect of duty. Britain is not shirking its responsibility, but in its endeavor to do the best in an almost hopeless and exceedingly difficult situation its motives are all too frequently misunderstood and its actions misinterpreted.

That misconceptions and misunderstandings should arise is understandable, because the ultimate success of much of the work for the world which Britain is undertaking precludes making public the various steps by which these policies are being carried out. Britain today is acting as trustee for the rehabilitation of Europe and a goodly part of Asia. Britain would gladly be relieved of the responsibility if she could, but she cannot. She, therefore, "carries on."

Enemies of Great Britain, however, are not slow in making use of Britain's work for the world to misrepresent the British people as reaching out to grab all they can during this re-construction period, while other nations are weak and disorganized. Especially in the United States—the only other nation in the world whose position is at all comparable to that of Britain—are the enemies of Britain endeavoring to create a deep-seated suspicion of British motives and actions. Britain is represented as militaristic, autocratic, selfish and brutal, an enemy to all other peoples and nations.

Recently, the launching of the British battleship, Hood, was used as a text by the Hearst papers to misrepresent Great Britain as threatening the United States, because no other navy could even begin to approach in size and power to the British Navy. But what are the facts? They were recently given by Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador at Washington, in a speech before the Pilgrims' Club of New York. Referring to a certain class of United States publications, Sir Auckland Geddes said:

"The columns which I read picture a grasping, greedily England laying violent hands on anything she can reach, militaristic in spirit, creating a navy to dominate the oceans. That is not the England of fact; that is not the England that I, who am not English, love and admire. That is not the spirit which inspires the British Government. The people of England today are strongly anti-militaristic, liberal, democratic, seeking no quarrel, jealous of none, hoping for world peace and determined to make great sacrifices, if necessary, to secure it."

"Let us look at a few facts. First, the navy. When the armistice came we had more than 1,000 ships of various sizes building or finishing. These were mostly small craft, of course. But among them were four battle cruisers, of which, one, the Hood, was fitted out. The moment it was clear that the fighting was over the orders for over 600 of these ships were cancelled and the ships themselves were broken up and dispersed. Now note, of those 600 and more, three were great battle cruisers, sisters of the Hood, and they were broken up. The Hood was not. She was too nearly finished. The cancellations would have been more sweeping had it not been that 319 of the vessels were completing for sea. These were mostly of the trawler or drifting type. These were finished as fishing boats, etc."

Sir Auckland Geddes went on to give figures showing that the air force and army were even more drastically dealt with, and he asked whether this looked like militarism, or a desire to dominate the seven seas? "It is no business of mine," he added, "to compare these facts with the corresponding actions of any other nation, but I ask you, who know yourselves to be non-militarist, to contrast them with your own national acts if you are tempted to think England militarist."

England today is a different England from what she was before the war. During it, she, in common with the other British peoples, saw a great light. At home they are determined to mould and are rapidly moulding their social organization to secure certain clearly defined ends, the first and greatest of which is such adjustment between capital and labor as will give equal opportunities of health and education and advancement to rich and poor—high and low. The whole country is seething with new mental and spiritual life, and in spite of all difficulties, believing that their feet are on the path to the better ordering of human affairs, the British people intend to go steadily forward to secure peace and disarmament in Europe.

If the United States had decided ere this to take its place in the League of Nations and assume its full share of the responsibility for the rehabilitation of the world and the preservation of peace, as Great Britain has done, perhaps there would be less likelihood of Britain's motives being misunderstood. As Sir Auckland Geddes said in concluding his speech at New York: "If you decide that you cannot help, please try to understand what we are attempting to do and how great our burden is."

JOY AND GLADNESS FOR THE CHILDREN

Every child—whether it be poor or rich is entitled to joy and gladness. Health is the basis of all and there is absolutely no doubt that the healthy baby is a happy baby. It is the baby's nature to be happy—no cross. Only the sickly baby is cross. The well child is a joy to the home and a laughing, gurgling, happy little piece of humanity which drives dull care from the household. The sickly baby the opposite—he is cross and peevish; creates a great deal and is a source of constant worry to the mother. But mothers there is no need of your little ones being sickly. Regulate the baby's bowels and sweeten his stomach with a gentle but thorough laxative and baby will soon be well and happy again. Thousands of mothers have proved this through their use of Baby's Own Tablets—there is a smile in every dose of the Tablets. Give them to your baby and make him happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Strong Wings Of Upper Air

Possible to Attain 350 Miles an Hour Says Major Schroeder. Major W. R. Schroeder, holder of the world's record airplane altitude height, told members of the Chamber of Commerce, whom he addressed at Cincinnati, that in a few months he expected to make an altitude flight across the continent, having breakfast at San Francisco and dinner at New York. "At an altitude of 30,000 to 35,000 feet," said the major, "the high velocity airspeed wind alone will carry us over 250 miles an hour and our engines will add more than 100 miles an hour to the speed. These terrific winds of the upper air will make a morning spin from New York to Paris a common occurrence."

It's a pity that more of us are not willing to follow the advice we give to others.

Headed For World Leadership

Chicago Paper Refers to Some of the Things Canada Has Accomplished.

Commenting on the proposal to appoint a Canadian minister at Washington, the British Canadian, published in Chicago, says: "Mere size of territory is no argument for the prerogative of nationhood. That is true; and if Canada were merely a stretch of landscape, no matter how immense, her lone squatters would be rightly laughed at for demanding ambassadorial courtesies. But this big country next door is the mother of big men. In every field of endeavor they have proved their capacity—in agriculture, manufactures, commerce and trade they compete with the world's best. In arts and sciences they are not only students but teachers. They have taken their marvellously rich country in the rough and turned it into a gigantesque successful enterprise, with farms, factories, mills, mines, water powers, railroads, shipping, operating on a grand and lucrative scale from Atlantic to Pacific. When we think of Haiti and Panama and Siam and many other little nations with official voices at Washington, we get the shock of contrast. Surely Canada deserves to rank, not with the infantile republics and kingdoms, but with the great commonwealths. She is headed for world leadership."

Chivalry in Excelis

The Maoris, now showing themselves, not for the first time, the loyalst of subjects, once proved the most chivalrous of enemies. Sixty years ago, when misunderstandings led them into rebellion, the Maori chiefs heard that General Cameron's forces, operating against them, while waiting for river steamers had run short of food. They were sportsmen of the best kind. No glory, said they, in fighting hungry men, so, under a flag of truce, they sent down the river a little fleet of boats laden with potatoes and milk goats for the British forces. I doubt if the whole history of war can show an instance of magnanimity to equal that—London Daily Express.

Alberta's Seed Expenditure

It is estimated that the total supplies of seed given out this season by the Alberta government will represent a money value of $750,000, which is about double the expenditure of last year, and the largest in any one year since the government undertook this method of relief. All the grain supplied for seeding purposes was Alberta grown.

Decrease in Grain Storage. According to returns received at the Dominion bureau of statistics for the week-end May 28, the quantity of grain in store at the different public elevators throughout Canada has decreased by 3,188,935 bushels. As compared with the previous week, wheat, oats and barley show decreases of 1,499,992, 1,679,114 and 99,013 bushels, respectively. Flax and rye increased at 15,785 and 64,399 bushels. Stocks in store at all points on May 28, 1920, were: Wheat, 21,592,945 bushels; oats, 6,559,949 bushels; barley, 3,056,892 bushels; flax, 504,600; rye, 256,925.

BASEBALL

We witnessed a class of Baseball that was not very creditable on Friday evening of last week when Crossfield journeyed to Carstairs.
We feel that the fans don't care for that kind of an exhibition either, fights and squabbles taking place over the most trivial occurrences.
However the local team came home with the long end of a 7-4 score.
Skinner hurt his pitching hand,
Pineo handling the pill without letting Carstairs score after he entered the box. Haywood was also hurt pretty bad from a base runner bump-ing him. Crossfield hold a fair lead in the league at present and we look to them to keep up the good work.

Love of The Wild

— BY —

ARCHIE P. McKISHNIE

Printed by Special Arrangements with The Allen, Toronto, Ont.

She passed from the room, and Boy sat huddled before the table, his head in his hands, his eyes fastened upon the guns hanging on the wall. From the shadows Big McTavish's fiddle was wailing "Ye Banks and Bras." The fire died and the long-armed shadows reached and groped about the room, touching the dried venison strips and the hams and bacon hanging from the ceiling, glancing from the only green hides stretched for curing on the walls, hovering above the bundles of pelts and piles of traps in the corners of the room. But Boy's mind was not on the trapping activities that soon would bestir the times once more. In his soul he was pondering over the question of this new unrest: a question which must be answered sooner or later by somebody.

CHAPTER III.

The father arose and hung the fiddle on its nail.

"Best go to bed, Boy," he yawned, picking up the huge clasp-knife with which he had been chipping the ax-handle and putting it in his pocket. When he withdrew his hand it held a letter.

"Well, now, if I didn't forget all about this here epistle," he exclaimed frowning. "Jim Peeler gave it to me this afternoon. That man Watson, the land-agent at Bridgton, gave it to Jim to give me. You read it Boy, and see what he wants."

Boy took the letter and broke it open with nervous fingers.

"Watson says he's comin' over to see you tomorrow, Dad. Seems like he wants to get hold of this place."

"By hickory!" expostulated the father, "what do you think of that?"

"What do I think? It's just what I expected, that's all."

Boy lifted the window and leaned out. The moon was flooding the outer world with a soft radiance. The bark of a wolf came faintly to his ears from the back ridges. Old Joe lay stretched in the moonlight beside the ash-leach. As Boy watched him the dog arose, shook himself happily, turned three times around, and lay down again. An owl hoisted mournful maledictions from a neighboring thicket, and in the nearby coop the fowl stirred and nestled down again, heads beneath wings. Boy came back and stood beside his father.

"I guess maybe I'm selfish, dad," he said slowly. "It isn't for me to say what I think, although it's mighty good of you to ask. This place ain't mine, it's yours. You've worked hard and long to clear what you have cleared here, and that's a great deal more than any of the other Bushwhackers have done. I haven't been anythin' of a help to you much. 'Course I could be from now on. I'm a man grown, nearly, and as soon as the trappin' is over I might pitch in and help you to clear the land any H. CLAY GLOVER, 111 West 21st Street, New York, U.S.A.

The father laid his pipe down on the table and combed his long beard with his fingers.

"Boy," he said, "every hanged stick of timber and every foot of this four hundred acres of bushland is as much yours as mine, and you know it. I ain't wantin' to clear the land any more than the rest of the Bushwhackers are. What do I want with cleared land? Gosh sakes alive, I'd be so lonesome for the woods that I could not live. I can't sleep now if I don't hear the trees swishin' and the twigs poundin' the roof nights. And ain't we tolerably happy, all of us together here, even if the little ma is purty sick and it's mighty hard not to be able to help her? And ain't we hopin' and prayin' that she'll get to be her self once more, here where the woods breathes its own medicine. And don't we know them prayers'll be answered?"

"He bent over and laid his big hand on the lad's shoulder.

"Then we'll naturally put in some great nights, crackin' hickory-nuts by the fire and playin' the fiddle. Why I wouldn't part with one acre of this piece of bush for all the cleared land in western Ontario."

Boy stooped and picked up the letter.

"Watson writes that he has a cultivated farm near Clearview that he'll swap for this of ours," he said. "Where's Clearview, dad?"

"Why, it's a strip of sandy loam between Bridgton and Lake Erie. It's to light even to grow Canadian thistles. Well, I guess maybe Watson would be willing to swap that sand for our place. I don't like that man Watson. I can't say why, unless it's on account of some things I've heard of him and that other fellow, Smythe, who's a partner of his in some way."

"You mean the Smythe who keeps the store at Bridgton?"

"The same. You know him pretty well, I guess. He cheated you out of a dozen mink-hides, didn't he?"

"He tried to," answered Boy with a smile.

"—Mr. Watson'll find that we're not wantin' to trade farms," affirmed the father.

"There's Gloaz," suggested the boy. "If she was where there was a good school—" He hesitated and looked at Big McTavish.

The man laughed.

"Why, bless your heart," he cried, "you couldn't drive the girl away from this bush. She loves it—loves every nook and corner of it."

Boy sighed.

"She sure does," he agreed. "She sure does."

The father brought a pine board from the woodbox and began to whittle off the shavings for the morning fire-making. This done, he gathered them together with a stockinged foot and glancing now and again at the boy, who had resumed his old attitude.

"Watson and Smythe want to get hold of our property for some reason," said the father, "and I reckon it's pretty easy to guess who they're trying to get it for. It's that big land-owner, Colonel Hallibot, who has his mill on Lee Creek. I hear that Col. Hallibot swears that he'll own every stick of timber in Bushwhackers' Place."

"That's what troubles me," returned Boy. "You know what them rich Englishmen are like, dad. They have always got hold of everything they wanted, and now this one is goin' to try and get our place. But we ain't goin' to let him," he cried, springing up. "We'll fight him dad; we'll fight him off, and if he tries to take it we'll—"

"Hush, Boy; there's no reason to take on this way. What makes you think he'll try to drive us?"

Big McTavish stood up straight. Something of the boy's spirit had entered into him for an instant.

"You see, dad, we're poor. That is, we have no ready money, though we have everything'll we need for comfort, Then we're lackin' in that somethin' called sharpness, among businessmen. We've never learned it. We are like the other wild things that creep farther back into the woods before what they can't understand. We don't know their ways. I tell you, Hallibot would steal this bushland from us, and he's goin' to try. It's valuable. There's enough walnut and oak and the highest class of timber on this place to make us rich—rich, I've know that, dad? And ain't Hallibot and his agents trying to get every other bushwhacker under their thumbs same as they're tryin' to get us? But, dad, listen—they won't get us, by God; they won't get us."

The lad was trembling and his face was white and perspiring.

Report of the Auditors to the Shareholders of The Merchants Bank of Canada

In accordance with the provisions of sub-section 19 and 20 of section 56 of the Bank Act, we report to the shareholders as follows:

We have examined the above Balance Sheet with the Books of Account and other records at the Chief Office of the Bank and with the several returns from the Branches and Agencies where checks the cash and verified the securities of the Bank as the Chief Office against the entries in regard thereto in the books of the Bank as at April, 1920, and at a different time during the year found them to be correct. We also attended at some of the Branches and Agencies and verified the securities held at the dates of our attendances and found them to agree with the entries in regard thereto in the books of the Bank.

We have obtained all the information and explanations we have required. In our opinion, the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank, and the above Balance Sheet is properly drawn up as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as appears by the books of the Bank.

Amendments to The Luxury Tax Are Forecasted

Ottawa.—Important changes in the luxury taxes are pending. In the house Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, indicated some changes he intends to propose. In brief they are:

(a) Boots and essential articles of clothing to be taxed 15 percent on the excess, instead of ten percent on the total selling price.

(b) Expensive furniture, walking sticks and expensive china to be subject to luxury tax. They were not previously included.

(c) Exception limit increased on furs, coats, caps, muffs, neckpieces, robes and rugs.

(d) Modifications in the tax of sporting goods, velveteens, lace and velvets, braid, ribbons and carpets. Sir Henry did not give formal notice of his proposed amendments. This will be given later. He, however, made it clear to the house that the taxes as laid down in the budget speech would be still in force for the present. "Nothing said tonight," he declared, "will alter the present law until the resolutions have passed the house."

Sir Henry suggested that the tax on boots, shoes, pumps and slippers might be raised from ten to fifteen percent on all those costing over $9, the tax to be figured on the excess over $9, instead of the total cost of the articles.

Sir Henry submitted further amendment in regard to essential articles of clothing. Instead of ten percent on the full cost, the tax on the following articles, if present suggestions are adopted, will now be fifteen percent on the excess.

Trousers sold separately from suits, in excess of $12 per pair; coats, men's and boys', sold separately from suits (not including leather coats lined with sheepskin), in excess of $25 each.

Cloth overcoats, men's and boys', women's and misses', in excess of $50 each.

Waistcoats, men's, sold separately from suits, in excess of $5 each.

Suits (except silk), in excess of $60 each.

Coats, women's and misses' sold separately from suits (except silk) in excess of $35 each.

The further stipulation is made that on articles of clothing, the selling price of material and the cost of manufacture, when sold separately, are to be combined for determining the selling price.

No change, Sir Henry added, was proposed on the tax on articles which might be regarded as an extravagance entirely within the control of the purchaser.

Sir Henry proposed that he proposed to include walking sticks as subject to the luxury tax. Fur coats would be exempted up to $200 value, instead of $100, as provided in the original resolution.

The exemption on winter fur gloves would be increased to $15, on fur caps to $15, on muffs and neckpieces to $35 and on robes and rugs to $35. Knitted sweaters and sweaters had not been included in the original resolution. It was proposed to include them now.

A modification was proposed, Sir Henry added, in regard to the sports and games. Articles required for popular games would be exempted from tax up to a certain amount, as for instance: baseballs and bats, except up to $1.25; mitts and gloves, except to $1.50; skates except to $2; football, except to $3; lacrosse sticks, except to $1.50; hockey sticks except to 75 cents.

A tax of 15 percent was also proposed on all extravagant furniture of walnut, mahogany, rosewood, ebony, primers, etc.

A tax would also be placed on expensive china and crockery.

Ravages of Windstorm

More Than Thirty Counties of Minnesota and Part of North Dakota Affected

St. Paul.—Seven persons killed, more than 100 injured, and property losses that will aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars, were the toll taken by a terrific wind and electric storm that swept northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

Partial restoration of wire communication disclosed a mounting death list, and fears were expressed that final reports from sections still isolated might increase the casualties. More than thirty Minnesota counties were more or less seriously affected by the storm which was felt with diminishing intensity in Minnesota and St. Paul.

The monetary damage is confined to small houses, barns, other outbuildings, livestock and trees.

Near Grey Eagle, 25 of the 30 cottages in the summer colony at Birch Lake were leveled.

In addition to one killed, 15 persons were injured there, several seriously.

Faint and Dizzy Spells. Weakness and Shortness of Breath.

You can generally tell when the heart is affected by the faint and dizzy spells, the shortness of breath, palpitation, the nervousness, the weakness, the smothering sensations, weak, slitting, all-gone feeling, choking sensation, etc.

Many men and women become rundown and worn out when either they would only pay some attention to the first sign of heart weakness.

No remedy, I had these also weak spells, once in a while, and also weakness and shortness of breath, and I could hardly sleep without sitting up in bed. When walking too fast I would have to stop and try to catch my breath. I feel a lot better since I have used your pills and know that they have helped me wonderfully as I have improved very much."

Speaks Right Out
and To The Point

MISS LADERONT SAYS DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS HELPED HER KIDNEY DISEASE

Bigwood Lady Points the Way to Health to the Weak, Weary, Nervous, Run-down Women of Canada.

Bigwood, Ont., June 14th (Special). "Dodd's Kidney Pills relieved me of kidney disease."

That is the statement of Miss Laurance Laderont, a highly esteemed lady living here. It is short and to the point. There can be no misunderstanding of its meaning. It is a clear and ringing message to women all over Canada. It tells them where they too, may find relief.

For ninety per cent. of the ills from which women suffer come from weak or diseased kidneys. They are the organs that strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease out of the blood. If they fail in this work the impurities remain in the blood and are deposited all over the body. The result is a host of ailments, such as, backache, dropsy, and rheumatism.

Ask your neighbor if all these diseases cannot be avoided by using Dodd's Kidney Pills to strengthen the kidneys.

Production Only Means of Paying Our National Debt

Saskatoon.—A feature of the land congress held in the G.W.V.A. under the auspices of the Saskatchewan land settlement association, was the speech of Robert J. C. Stead, director of publicity of the department of immigration and colonization, Ottawa. He spoke on "Immigration and the National Debt."

Mr. Stead opened his remarks with a statement that the appeal of his subject, "Immigration and the National Debt," was not strong, and that immigration should not be approached from the point of view of paying debts. "If the migrant enters this country he naturally assumes his share of the national debt, but at the same time he also sheds his responsibility to the country which he leaves."

Mr. Stead explained that he did not come to the congress commissioned by the minister in Ottawa as regards anything that he might say, but that he was going to express his own opinions and did not think any the less of them because they were his own.

"Population will not pay the national debt," he declared. "Greater production is the only means. It is an unfortunate fact that under the present high rate of living there is too great a laxity to look back and examine the cause for such a rate. We are living in an age of invention which has entered into our whole structure, and fabric to a wonderful extent."

Mr. Stead then pointed out that by means of the waterways, railroads and agricultural machinery, one man has been enabled to do the work of a thousand since 1860, and that as a result of this great advancement, population began to centralize in the cities.

Markets for the large amount of goods then produced were needed. Advertising came into being and the element of personal salesmanship was introduced. Advertisements have a peculiar psychological effect underlying them that is not considered. It is to induce discontent. That may sound brutal, but that is what it is. To make us discontented with what we have got and so we go and purchase something else.

Yet the idea is not wrong. The most hopeless man in the world is the man who lacks discontent. So long as discontent is well organized it is a valuable asset to the community. It is like steam in a boiler. As long as it is under control it has powerful potentialities, but it is also likely to get out of control and blow up the boiler.

Today the cities produce everything except foodstuffs. How is that consistent with the development of the agricultural machinery and the opening up of great tracts of fertile land? By these means so far we have been able to keep up with the demand, but there comes a point where it must stop.

Pointing out the great strides made in production at the outset of the war, Mr. Stead said: "With the outbreak of hostilities it was evident at once that men were valiant without rifles and artillery, cartridges and shells. Aside from one rifle factory, Canada was practically without plants for the manufacture of military supplies, and the total value of munitions shipped from the Dominion during the first five months of the war was only $28,000. By that time Canadians realized the tremendous seriousness of the struggle in which they were engaged. Dreamers, who could see nothing more than a six months' war, were disillusioned, and every lad that could turn a shell was hurriedly adapted to munition work. In 1915 Canada exported $57,000,000 worth of munitions and materials for war purposes. In 1916, $296,000,000 worth; in 1917, $388,000,000 worth, and in 1918—ceasing in November—$260,000,000 worth. These contributions demanded the services of some 300,000 men and women, so that, including those enlisted, those engaged in munition work, Canada furnished to the direct prosecution of the war nearly one-ninth of her population."

Clash With Irish Rebels

Raiders Fled, Leaving Material Intended for Firing Court House of Irish Village

Belfast.—A pitched battle, resulting in numerous casualties was fought in the village of Lisfally, near Enniskillen, when a patrol of Ulster volunteers surprised 50 raiders who came to burn the court house. Many of the Ulster men were wounded, one being shot through the lung.

The raiders' casualties are estimated at seven. These men were carried off by their comrades. Inflammable material was found outside the court house by a detachment who arrived after the flight of the raiders.

Meteor Falls in Oklahoma

Four States See Fiery Body Crossing Southwestern Skies

Oklmulgee, Okla.—Geologists will examine a huge meteor which fell and burned itself out near here after lighting the sky over several southwestern states. Hundreds of persons in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Oklahoma watched the meteoric fire, reports said. Tulsa, Okla., reported that when it passed over that city the meteor appeared to be within a few hundred yards of the earth and that the lower and heavier portion was of a greenish blue color, followed by a long, wedge-shaped tail.

C.B. Smith, an astronomic authority at Muskogee, said he believed the meteor was thrown off from a destroyed planet between Jupiter and Mars, as it appeared to travel from west to east.

Fight With Forest Fires

Ontario Foremen Saved From the Forest Blaze After A Severe Struggle

Cobalt, Ont.—For three days and three nights, practically without any sleep, the women, men and children of Boston Creek battled to save their town from a terrific forest fire which swept down upon it. They battled successfully, but in the meantime all communication was cut off and there were many who feared that the town had been wiped out. Later, however, word that the town was saved was received through the mails.

From Gawanda comes news of a menacing fire which threatens the new silver camp. It has approached the Bonall mine. The O'Brien power transmission line has been burned and Wigwam is threatened, along with the big sawmill there. Timmekes and Porcupine are not molested.

Bonar Law Denies the Bolshevik Report of Revolution in Persia

London.—In the commons, Bonar Law was asked if there were any grounds for the Bolshevik boasts of the rout of British forces at Reish, Persia, said there was no justification for the reports, which were probably based on the fact that the British were some time ago voluntarily withdrawn from Reish, under the scheme for reducing British commitment abroad.

Mr. Law also said that if the United States refused the mandate for Armenia it was not likely that Great Britain would accept it.

The house was informed that Gen. Dyer did not voluntarily resign the command after the Amritsar affair. Mr. Law announced that discussion of Gen. Dyer's case would be postponed until after the general had been heard by the army council.

Von Kluck Leaves Fatherland

Finds That Life in Germany is Intolerable and Seeks New Home

Geneva.—Field Marshal Alexander H. R. Von Kluck, who commanded the right wing of the German army in its advance on Paris in 1914, has arrived with his family at Aarau, 41 miles north of Bern. He declared today that life had become insupportable in Germany and said he intended to buy a chateau and live in Switzerland henceforth.

Field Marshal Von Kluck was one of the Germans demanded for trial by the allied governments. He was accused of the assassination of hostages at Senlis and the massacre of civilians at Aerschot.

Farmers Should Assist In Work of Collecting Agricultural Statistics

Amongst the statistical reforms accomplished or inaugurated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, established in 1918, none is of more importance than that which is concerned with agriculture, the leading industry of Canada. It is essential that the mercantile, banking and insurance interests should have accurate information respecting the country's annual agricultural production, and that statisticians and legislators should know the volume and direction of the country's progress. To farmers themselves it is of supreme importance to know what areas are being devoted to particular crops in their own and other countries, how such crops are being extended or withdrawn from cultivation, and what is the volume of production in one season as compared with another. They should, by means of accurate information on these points, be able to form their own judgment as to the local crop likely to prove most remunerative. Similarly, a knowledge of the numbers of farm live stock, and whether these are increasing or decreasing from year to year, is important to all dealers, and is at least of equal importance to breeders and producers. Moreover Canada as a country adhering to the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, has undertaken to furnish periodical reports on the agricultural production of the Dominion, receiving and publishing in exchange the valuable information respecting the agricultural production of other countries which the Institute collects and disseminates.

In Canada, estimates of agricultural statistics by the Dominion Government have been annually made since 1908, these estimates having been compiled from the returns of crop correspondents in percentages of the previous year's data. Except for immediate and tentative purposes, this method has now been abandoned as imperfect; and during the past three years the annual agricultural statistics of the Dominion have been based on returns of areas and numbers of live stock on the farm, collected from individual farmers in the month of June. This information is obtained by means of a simple cardboard schedule, which is distributed to farmers through the agency of the rural school teachers and children. The cards, when completed, are first sent to the provincial government, who, after having them sorted into counties or districts, transmits them to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa for final compilation into totals by adding machinery.

The figures thus collected form a fairly sure basis for estimating the totals according to the ratio which subsists between the total number of farms and the returns actually received. After harvest and threshing, estimates are obtained from crop correspondents of the average yield per acre, which multiplied by the areas, give the total yields. The total yields, when multiplied by the average values per unit, give the total values. The final results are adjusted after consultation between the Dominion and provincial authorities, and identical figures are then released for simultaneous publication by the Dominion governments, the former publishing the figures for each province, and for the whole of Canada, and the latter publishing the figures in and for their respective provinces, and in most cases by local counties or crop districts as well. There is in one or two cases some variation of procedure. For instance, in Ontario the process is reversed, and the cards are issued and collected by the Dominion Government for compilation by the provincial government, the final estimates being calculated from the total acreage according to plans long in use. In British Columbia the cards are addressed and mailed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics direct to the farmers, and the compilation is effected locally. But the essential feature is that division of labor is mutually agreed upon, and the results obtained are identical; so that the conflict of figures which used to characterize the government agricultural statistics of Canada is now happily a thing of the past. Similar procedure is applied to the numbers of farm live stock as classified by ages, and information as to the number of living animals on the farm in June is collected on the same cards as used for crops. The system was applied experimentally for the first time in June, 1917, in four provinces, and in 1918 and 1919 it was extended to all the nine provinces of Canada. The proportion of returns has varied from about 21 to 99 percent of the total number of farms, except in two of the western provinces last year, where the proportion fell below the minimum in consequence of the dislocation of arrangements by the Winnipeg strike.

As the time is now approaching for the collection of this year's returns of the areas sown and the numbers of farm animals, it is desirable to call the serious attention of farmers to the duty of filling up the simple schedule required. Any farmer who does not receive a card by the middle of June should apply for one either to the school teacher in his school district, to the Agricultural Department of his province, or to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa.

It is the aim of the Dominion and provincial statistical authorities to secure an annual return from every individual farmer in the Dominion. The issue of trustworthy agricultural statistics is important for all classes of interests in Canada, but to none is it of greater importance than to farmers themselves, who otherwise carry on their industry in the dark, and are liable to be victimized by unscrupulous traders. It is impossible to prevent, were it desirable to do so, the estimates of annual grain and meat production and consequently it is in the interest of the rural community that statistics relating to their industry should be accurate and trustworthy and be put forth on independent and unbiased authority. No individual returns are published, and the information collected is not used in any way for taxation purposes. It is confidently expected that as farmers become better acquainted with the system organized for their benefit and realize the practical value to themselves of accurate agricultural statistics there will be a continuous increase in the proportion of returns. Meanwhile, it should be remembered that whatever degree of error may attach to the figures issued is attributable to the estimate that has to be made from the actual returns. In fact any imperfection of the system is due to the extent to which farmers whether from apathy, negligence or mistaken prejudice, make default. In proportion as the number of returns is increased and the necessity for estimation is in consequence reduced, will the risk of error be eliminated and the greater accuracy of the totals be established.

Plan Irrigation Project For Saskatchewan

Cost of Proposed Scheme Will Be One Million Dollars

Further evidence of how the prairie farmer now regards irrigation in the west, and another instance of the general demand for extended schemes comes from the southwestern corner of the province of Saskatchewan, where a petition has been prepared for the launching of a new irrigation project under the provisions of the newly passed irrigation act. The scheme is to cost approximately one million dollars, and will be easily the largest project of its kind attempted in Saskatchewan, embracing 125,000 acres. Furthermore, it is stated that it will prove one of the cheapest irrigation schemes on the American continent, the estimated cost being less than $9 per acre, whereas others have cost as high as $50 per acre.

The schemes involves the diversion of the Battle and Boulanger Creeks into Davis Lake, and the construction of a dam four miles west of the lake across the White Mud Valley in the vicinity of the Maple Creek trail south into Montana. The natural topography and geographical features of the country make the project easy and economical from the engineering point of view. The proposed dam across the valley will be approximately 250 in height, built of concrete, and will cross the full width of the valley.

Three channels are to be cut from the south side of the lake, forming main irrigation canals through the country down to the Lethbridge-Weyburn line of the C.P.R., and providing for watering the crops through the country north of Consul, Vidora, and Robsart. While this is the extent of the scheme as at present outlined, it is stated that it would be possible to extend it farther to provide for the irrigation of considerable tracts of country farther south.

Enterprising Iceland

Is Modern Land, But Has No Railways or Street Cars

Mrs. Jonasson, of Reykjavik, Iceland, has been shopping on a large scale in New York for her chain of four stores in Hafnarfjord, Isafjord, and the Icelandic capital, and naturally enough, a reporter has been interviewing her. The Evening Post New York prints the interview, and the reader gets an interesting picture of modern Iceland, where "there are no railways and no street cars, but there are lots of automobiles, and where they cannot go the people ride on horseback." One expects strange, and where they cannot go the people ride on horseback." One expects strange, and where they cannot go the people ride on horseback." One expects strange, and where they cannot go the people ride on horseback." One expects strange, and where they cannot go the people ride on horseback.

Autumn on Mars
It is now autumn on Mars, and the first snowfall of the season on the planet was announced in a telegram received at Harvard college observatory from Prof. Wm. H. Pickering, who is stationed at Mount Wilson, Jamaica. The telegram said the snowfall occurred at Isidis, which is in the neighborhood of the part of the planet known to observers as Syrtis major.

Many Valuable Uses May be Found For Western Flax Straw

In the bureau of standards at Washington, there will soon begin a series of experiments on flax straw from Western Canada which might be of inestimable importance in the future development of flax growing in the west. Chief among the objects held in view by the experimenters is that of demonstrating, if possible, the feasibility of making paper from this straw. Some kinds of paper have already been made, but it is hoped that, on account of the dearth of newsprint and the desirability of preventing too great an inroad on the forest resources of Canada, some method may be found of using this straw for the manufacture of a pulp from which newsprint can be made.

A shipment of flax straw is now leaving the west for Washington. In the west nearly two million acres have been devoted to the growing of flax for seed, the climate being hitherto regarded as not exactly right for the flax fibre. Hundreds of thousands of tons—some say as much as two million tons of the straw fibre—have been burned every year, a loss which in places like Ireland seems sinful. Various suggestions have been made as to the use of this straw, one man demonstrating that a good cooking and heating gas can be obtained from it. Another that twice for use on the farms of Canada could be developed, and still another that it can be used in manufacture of crash toweling, crash rags, portieres, etc. The latter industry has been developed already to a small extent, the linen manufactured from this western straw being mixed with 80 per cent. of cotton.

The manufacture of paper, however, is the chief aim of the experimenters for the utilization of straw which now goes to waste in a great part of the west. Last year in the house, Mr. S. Frank Glass, member for Middlesex East, who has preached the flax industry in season and out of season for years, exhibited a fine quality of paper produced from western flax. This paper was suitable for making bank notes, but it is hoped to get cheaper paper, such as newspaper paper as well, although the possibility of success in this direction now rests on the lap of the gods. If this venture is a success, and small mills for making pulp of this straw come to be built in Western Canada as a result of the demonstrations, there is little doubt but that the flax-growing industry in the west would grow by leaps and bounds.

In addition to amount received from the flax seed, the western grower would reap a return for the straw as well.

Dr. A. B. MacCallum, of the research council, would express no opinion as to the prospects of success, saying that he wished to raise no hope which might be disappointed later. However, shipments would not have been made if there was not ground for believing some good results would follow.

Testing Eggs

When the freshness of an egg is doubtful, break each one separately in a cup before mixing them together. To ascertain the freshness of eggs, break them one by one in a solution made of two ounces of salt to one pint of water. A fresh egg sinks, an egg a few days old has a tendency to rise a little in the liquid, while a stale egg floats on top.

Ontario Eggs Go to Old Country

Seven carloads of Ontario eggs were shipped last week to Great Britain. Last year Ontario eggs made an enviable reputation on the English market, selling at a premium as high as twenty-four cents over those of their nearest competitor, the United States. This was largely due to the rigid system of inspection at points of shipping.

C.N.R. Men on G.T.R. Board

The Canadian government has chosen as its representatives to sit on the board of management of the Grand Trunk Railway, Carlos A. Hayes, vice-president, in charge of traffic in the C.N.R., and Samuel J. Hungerford, assistant vice-president of operating, maintenance and construction department, Canadian National Railways, both of whom have had over thirty years of actual railway experience and have risen step by step until at present they are recognized among the foremost railway men of Canada, each an expert in his own respective field of service.

Mr. Carlos A. Hayes was born at West Springfield, Mass., March 10th, 1865, and entered railway service in April 1882, holding various clerical positions in the accounting and general freight departments of the Boston and Maine railroad at Springfield, Mass., until November, 1890. From 1890 to 1892 he was with the Central New England and Western, and Philadelphia and Reading railways. He joined the G. T. R. in 1892 as New England agent of its National Dispatch East, becoming manager in 1896. In 1903 he became assistant general freight agent for the G. T. R. at Chicago then General freight agent for the G. T. R. at Montreal in 1908, and freight traffic manager in 1911. In 1913 he went to the Canadian Government Railways as general traffic manager, eastern lines and became general manager of eastern lines in 1917. In November, 1918, he was appointed vice-president in charge of traffic for Canadian National Railways at Toronto.

Mr. Samuel J. Hungerford was born in Canada, near Bedford, Que., July 15, 1872, and entered railway service at an early age as machinist's apprentice of the South Eastern and Canadian Pacific Railway at Farnham, Que. He held various positions in Quebec, Ontario and Vermont until 1894, when he was made a chief man at the Windsor Station, Montreal. This position he held until 1897, after which he received promotion after promotion until he joined the C.N.R. He became Superintendent of rolling stock of the western lines of that road with headquarters at Winnipeg in 1910. Five years later he was promoted to be superintendent of rolling stock at Toronto, with jurisdiction over all the lines of the Canadian Northern, and was made general manager of eastern lines of that company in November, 1917. He received the appointment of assistant vice-president in charge of operation maintenance and construction, Canadian National Railways, on December 1, 1918.

Could Not Sleep

Mr. Earnest Clark, Police Officer, 338 King St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

"For three years I suffered from nervousness and sleeplessness. I believe my condition was brought about by overwork. I had frequent headaches, neuralgic pains and twitching of nerves and muscles. I had indigestion, was short of breath and easily tired. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and seven boxes of this medicine cured me of all my symptoms. I am now feeling one hundred per cent. better than I was, and have to thank Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the good health I am now enjoying."

Difficulties of a Garden

The delights of a garden don't need classifying, but some of the difficulties do. The first is to find the right place in which to make the garden. It should be in a locality where the sun will shine on it for at least five hours each bright day. It should not be where the soil is so thin and the rocks so near the surface that the garden will burn out during the summer. It should not be under or near large trees; the trees will not only keep the sun off, but will draw all the moisture and plant food from the soil. Nor must the garden be in a spot that gets flooded.

BUSINESS GIRLS AND TEACHERS

Suffer From Overtaxed Nerves and Often a Complete Break-down.

Thousands of earnest, intelligent young women who earn their livelihood away from home, in the school room, in public offices, and in large business establishments, are silent, suffering victims of over-taxed nerves and deficiency of strength. Weak, breathless and nervous, they work against time, with never a rest when headaches and backaches may every hour seem like a day. Little wonder their checks lose the glow of health and grow pale and thin; their eyes are dull and shrunken and beauty slowly but surely fades. Business women and girls because of their work and worry, look older than their years. What they need is the frequent help of a true, strengthening remedy to carry them through the day. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are like actual food to the starved nerves and tired brain of the business girl. By making rich, red blood they supply just the kind of help girls need to preserve their health and beauty in their good looks. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills bring bright eyes, rosy cheeks, high spirits and thus make the day's duties lighter.

Miss Mary H. Hunt says: "Many people think of the life of a school teacher as one of comparative ease, with short hours and holidays plentiful. But the reverse is the case. When one has to stand day after day in year in and year out, with the worries great and small, from handling children, it begins to tell upon even the strongest, and especially upon the nerves. I had been teaching about five years and was then located at Springfield, Ont., when I found I was far from having the vitality I started out with. Before my term was out I had a complete nervous breakdown. I tried doctor's medicine and it helped, but only for a while. I then tried osteopathic treatment but with no better results. I suffered from loss of appetite, slept poorly, was nervous and troubled with severe headaches. Holidays came and I tried a change of schools, but found no harder place where I had over fifty pupils under my care. There were days when it seemed impossible for me to carry on my work. At this stage, my sister, who had also been a teacher, strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took the advice, and by the time I had finished my second box, I felt better, and had gained twelve pounds in weight. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with plenty of fresh air, worked wonders in my case and I should advise the use of them to any other run down teacher."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Better Health Train

To help in the combating of diseases and to give reliable information on all sicknesses, the Social Service Council of Saskatchewan has suggested the means of sending out a "Better Health Train," which will travel throughout the province and spread this information. A bulletin of the proposed idea, prepared by the Rev. W. P. Reekie, secretary of the council, will be circulated through the province within the next few days. The bulletin gives an outline of the recent social service work in the province, list of social service measures adopted by the provincial and Dominion governments, and a list of the measures now urgently needed.

B C Farmers Unite.

Amalgamation May Result in Entry Into Politics

Formation of a United Farmers' body in British Columbia is assured as the result of the adoption of a resolution at the joint convention at Kelowna of the farmers' institutes and United Farmers, adopting the constitution as revised by the joint committee and pledging each member to make the amalgamation a success.

This action is the initial step in the formation of what is admitted to be a United Farmers' organization pledged to work for the best interests of the farmers as a whole, and if necessary, to enter the political field and gain the privileges and protection desired.

Calgary Exhibition Features

King Gasoline will reign supreme at the Calgary Exhibition, June 28 to July 3, as several of the biggest features depend upon the use of "gas" and "oil" to attain success. On Friday and Saturday, July 2 and 3, championship automobile races will be staged in which such noted Mercurian monarchs as Sig. Haugbult, dirt track champion, Louis Diabrow, former world's champion, R. Burr Lampkin, of England, and others will battle for five thousand dollars in prize money.

Auto Polo, the most dangerous and exciting of all present day sports, will be daily feature, while on four days, June 27 to 30 inclusive, Lieut. Ormer Locklear will change places in mid-air. Locklear has only presented his feat in some of the largest cities, and he is the most talked of aviation stunt since the birth of the aeroplane.

The entries which have been received indicate that the exhibits in all departments will be the best ever seen in Calgary. The live stock exhibits, particularly, promise to be of a very high class.

Motorists will welcome the news that the Calgary automobile camp will be open for the season starting Exhibition week. The camp will be situated just one block south of the Exhibition grounds on the bank of the Elbow river, with caretaker in charge. A splendid opportunity to spend a delightful week camping out and at the same time enjoy the Calgary Exhibition is provided by the Calgary Auto Club, under whose auspices the camp is conducted.

For the convenience of those who are coming from out of town to attend the Exhibition and do not wish to take advantage of the camp, an accommodation bureau will be conducted at the C. F. R. Depot, Calgary, to assist them in getting rooms.

Residents out of town who are thinking of attending the Calgary Exhibition, June 28 to July 3, should inquire of their station agent regarding special passenger rates.
